e A perate in connection with the management of the Countlar Service in China, which though at first sight of a minor character, is not without some importance was noticed in the course of the investigation before the the news from Formosa is extremely warlike, Commissioners on the Civil Service which sat about two years ago, but it does not seem that anything has yet been done with regard to it: On the matter of the pay to Consular officials being discussed the question arose Saigon, ist beave that ship until she has been whother it would not be a great benefit to Consular Assistants in China if they were provided with furnished quarters. It is Officer has declared her free from contagions phatically in the affirmative, and it is to be regretted that up to the present nothing his been done to carry out the suggestion. The Imperial Customs Service is much in advance of the British Consular Service in this re--speet, as they have provided very good furnished quarters for their employes in Shanghai, being fully alive to the extent to which the status of the service would be raised by that step. It is to be regretted that the authorities at home cannot see this particular drift of the question so well as those who have been long resident in China, and it is not surprising on this account that Mr. HART should have stolen a march upon them in regard to it. In China it is difficult for juniors of limited means to find suitable places of abode. Here there are no Mrs. BARDELLS who let lodgings for single men and the Consular assistant, who is thrown upon his own resources, bas either to live at what compared with his means is a some. what expensive rate at a hotel, or has to make shift in a rough and roady and generally every uncomfortable manner. Even those who have quarters provided for them are not very much better of, as the expense of buying good furniture is very great, and bad furniture, with which, as a rule, they have to be contented, will not soll again, except at a serious loss. Often enough a Consular official is appointed to a new port, sells off his old furnitum at the one he is leaving at a loss, and has just got together what h wants at the new place whon he is again removed and has to put up with a further loss. At best Consular officials are not very well paid as compared with the ordinary rates of remuneration in such places as China. Of course there are counterbalancing advantages against the smaller pay they receive in the the hospital: cortainty of their positions so long as they conduct themselves reasonably, and in ulticareful and economical compared with other who was his nephew, being the son of his herely solely on the statement of Mr. Jack, employed by Atan, the contractor, for a time at people, and that in places where so much is youngest brother. equanimity of the stronger minded; but all men are not characterized by strength of mind, and some may justifiably icel a touch of annoyance at the peculiarity of the position they have to take up in China as compared with what is accorded at home to gentlemen of education occupying tolerably responsible posts under Government. A very great deal of this results simply from the absence of a house at which the Consular assistants might live in common. The average mind associates a man very closely with his place of residence and the bire fact that Consular assistants lived in some sufficiently imposing residence instead of as it were living nowliers, would do much to mise their general social position. We must not be unjust to the present Government. English Tories make excellent rulers, especially when the country is in a mood to be raled. No one knows better bow to discern a need for himself than the English country gentleman; and a cabinet o country gentlemen will have no difficulty persuading us, for a time at least, that it is th only bulwark between " peace and order " and something very terrible and ill-defined, which the fallacious logic of Radicals is wont to describe under the name of progress an reform. Against such fallocions logic the Tory Cubinet has steadily set its face; and on Tuesday last it had an excellent opportunity of proving to the nation how well

This is a principle on which we might be two rational opinions. If we are not more uttorly deceived and blinded than we have ever been in the course of our lives, that is principle which, candidly discussed upon its merit, would be affirmed by any and every body of Englishmen who could be got to think it worthy of serious discussion That the logical preponderance of the House of Commons is decisively in its favour, we cannot bring ourselves to doubt. That an overwhelming majority voted against it on Puesday may be readily explained by the fact that we are no longer living by logic, butsby a rule of Chinese Government, by stop-gaps to Radical reform by theneglect of political principles and national china. Fire Insurance Company's Shares—$129 country gentlemen. If the House did not think Mr. Laylor's motion worthy of serious disonssion, this was certainly not because of its lack of argumentative weight, but rather because serious discussion was not included in the bond by virtue of which the Tories are in power. It would be a huge mistake to suppose that the country returned Mr. Disraeli's supporters in order to wage serious discussions. Logic is oltogether beside the mark in the deliberations of our English national assembly: A Parliament, effete before it was born would only make itself ridiculous by attempting to precending to vote on logical grounds. The existing Government is far too true to its origin to full into any such mistake; and the estute politician who has his party so well in band is far too clever not to fold himself and his followers in the virtue of a dumb debate and of a blind and simply negative vote. There was indeed a something in the dumbness of Tuesday a debate which might have called a blush of shame to the cheeks of statemen less implicitly faithful to their mission!

MOR comprehensiveness and practical service the Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of Interears been compelled to coin to orpress the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bere given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming evercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Funti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body thereby effecting a vant economy of mpace, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the argue on a question of national progress—still Indo-Chinese Sugar Company $94 per cont. following facts are animitted for consideration.
